RESTAURANT BOSFOR / MOSCOW

Named after the famous strait in Istanbul, the Bosphorus (Bosfor) Restaurant opened its doors on Arbat Street in 1997. It was the first Turkish restaurant in Russia. For more than 20 years, here come those who value Turkish culture, oriental hospitality and unrivaled Turkish dishes.

The restaurant consists of two rooms decorated in a classic European style with notes of oriental flavor. In the summer season, you can spend time on a quiet veranda overlooking the Arbat and enjoy the warmth of the sun. Every Sunday from 09.00 to 15.00 hours, the Bosphorus Restaurant invites guests to a brunch.

CAPACITY: 140 Seats

MR. LIVANETS RESTAURANT / MOSCOW

The most attractive in the restaurant "Mr. Lebanese "in Glinischevsky lane that the kitchen is headed by a Lebanese - Mr. Basem Zain, so that you can safely vouch for the authenticity of the specialties served here. In addition, Mr. Zain does not just cook Lebanese cuisine dishes, but those whose recipes were handed down in his family from generation to generation, and which his grandmother taught him. Therefore, the food here is not only authentic, but also spiritual. The menu includes classic dishes from charcoal grilled lamb kebabs to tasty shawarmas. Preparing his own cheese, pickles, sauces and bread, Zain uses all local ingredients, bar the rose water, which he brings from home.

RESTAURANT SULTAN / MOSCOW

The restaurant is decorated in the spirit of oriental luxury. Wooden carved partitions and decorative columns, decorated with intricate ornaments, divide the restaurant's premises into three halls: Arabic, European and eclectic-oriental. For a business lunch, a European or Oriental hall is more suitable, but if you want to feel like Lawrence of Arabia, choose Arabic. There, sitting on soft sofas among the weapons hanging on the walls, be sure to try Kibi Nai from raw lamb, wheat grains, onions, and oriental spices. In this atmosphere, the traditional Tabuli salad of finely chopped parsley with fresh tomatoes, green onions, mint and boiled wheat and homemade white pea hommus, called chickpeas, with lamb acquire a special flavor.

RESTAURANT MAMALIGA / ST. PETERSBURG

The restaurant's gastronomic ideology is about introducing its guests to the distinctive and the incredibly delicious Caucasian cuisine. Georgian, Imeretian, Armenian, Gurian, Megrel, Svan and Adzharia culinary traditions coexist in harmony at the Mamaliga restaurant. For the people of the south, Mamaliga it's not just a corn porridge. It means dinners with family, noisy feasts and traditional hospitality. Thus, the Mamaliga restaurants have accumulated the Ginza Project's love for comfort, delicious food and the traditions of Oriental cuisine.

CHECHIL RESTAURANT / ST. PETERSBURG

The cuisine is all-round Georgian, encompassing the country's diverse regions. Khashlama from Kakhetia with golden broth and Adjari-style zucchini, Megreli-style Khachapuri and Rachin-style pork ribs. A soup with Borjomi gives you summer-like refreshment, supplemented by matzoni and pink radish. Tsitsila-chicken is baked whole in Svan oven – and served in one piece too. For breakfast, Kveli made of Nadugi cheese would be an ideal choice. National identity starts at the porch – from passionate Georgian shepherds painted on the pictures. Real greens under the ceiling, macramé-lampshades, cozy bookshelves hiding behind curtains of private cubicles. Copper utensils shine above the open kitchen, side by side with vials of pickled vegetables – a delicious treat

RESTAURANT PRYNOSTI I RADOSTI / ST. PETERSBURG

This is a specific restaurant located on Moskovsky Prospekt. Here, two seemingly fundamentally different directions are harmoniously combined - European and Caucasian cuisine. Being popular among residents of the northern capital, dishes of Europe and the Caucasus are widely known to many and many people know the taste. This restaurant gives a wider view, including the menu's lesser-known dishes from the Georgian region of Megrelia, as well as offering a curious assortment of European dishes, combining unusual ingredients.

RESTAURANT KHOCHU KHARCHO / ST. PETERSBURG

Western Georgia is famous for culinary traditions. The Khochu Kharcho restaurant's menu includes all the juicy Megrel dishes - Khachapuri with traditional Suluguni cheese filling, delicious Chakhokhbili and, of course, the nourishing Kharcho soup.

Brand-Chef and the soul of the entire restaurant group Iso Dzandzava knows all the secrets of Megrelian cooks. Just like people do in her home country, she puts Kharcho into a hazelnut and brings the special Adjika sauce back from Georgia, whenever she travels home.

The cozy interior of the Khochu Kharcho restaurant invites to leisure meetings and soulful conversations. Two floors and a summer terrace can accommodate 300 people, but the feeling of a close get-together is created by well-planned zoning of the restaurant space.

RESTAURANT BAKLAZHAN / ST. PETERSBURG

Real oriental cuisine. With the opening of the restaurant of Caucasian and Uzbek cuisine from Ginza Project, the exquisite culinary East becomes closer. "Baklazhan" in the new TRK "Gallery" on Ligovsky is a perfectly balanced Caucasian-Uzbek gourmet mix. Light and unusual vegetable snacks - including eggplant, of course! An impressive variety of barbecue, which is prepared with knowledge of the matter and always on the open barbecue. Conducted by a team of extra-class chefs, who collected the best recipes of dishes-kings of the Caucasus and Central Asia.
